Governor Is Expected To Sign Bill

Disputed Realignment Goes to Lehman in Closing Hours of Hot Session

Trade Act Passes

'Fair Trade' Advertising Bill Is Among Those Approved

Albany, N. Y., April 25 (AP)—Re-aligning of the state's congressional districts, voted by New York's legislature after bitter dispute, appeared virtually certain today of hurrying the last barrier to adoption—approval of Governor Lehman.

Ending a 15-weeks' session last night with passage of scores of controversial bills, the state's first wartime legislature in 24 years turned over to the governor a Republican-conceived plan to revise almost every congressional boundary line in 1944 and increase present districts from 43 to 45.

Mindful of Lehman's frequent appeals for changing the out-moded congressional lines adopted 31 years ago, legislative leaders of both parties predicted his consent to reapportion—despite some Democratic protests the measure is "the baldest Republican grab yet."

The legislature's final day brought these other outstanding developments: Senate rejection of an assembly-approved resolution which would have placed the state against the proposed St. Lawrence seaway development.

Completion of a powerful state war program with authorization of an extra $1,000,000 expenditure for enlargement of the state guard.

'Fair Trade' Bill
Approval of a "fair trade" bill classifying false retail advertising as a misdemeanor.

Adoption of several appropriation bills to finance legislative studies and investigations costing about $1,500,000 and boosting the new state budget to approximately $37,500,000—nearly $9,000,000 lower than the present program.

Decisive Senate defeat of an assembly-favored proposal to give the legislature, instead of country boards of supervisors, constitutional authority to draw assembly districts lines, and require three assembliesmen for each senator.

Appropriation of $150,000 for high school "pre-flight" training courses in aviation, requested by the Air Training Corps of America and federal and state education departments.

The congressional reapportionment controversy ripped party lines apart in both houses. The assembly, however, voted two redistricting bills, one calling for reapportionment immediately and the other, two years hence.

The senate, which a week ago rejected the formal proposal as well as a legislative reapportionment bill, promptly killed it again in committee but passed the 1944 measure with six votes to spare. Democratic leaders maintained it represented a G.O.P. attempt to "create purely Republican congressional districts."

The bill would increase New York city's representation from 23 to 24 and affect upstate chiefly by throwing two Republican congressmen, Francis D. Culkin, Oswego, and Fred J. Douglas, Oneida, into the same district, and putting Putnam county, now a part of the 26th district represented by Hamilton Fish (R.), into a newly formed 27th district with a part of more populous Westchester.

Democratic and Republican opponents expressed doubts, however, the reapportionment would take place. They promised an attack on the measure, should it become law, at the next session.

The governor scheduled the first meeting of the state's newly-created war council for May 1. Other legislative accomplishments during the session included a 25 per cent reduction of the state personal income tax, liberalization of unemployment insurance benefits to care for persons made jobless by industry's transition from a peace to wartime basis, permissive quarterly installments of state personal income taxes in 1943, and elimination of a $2,000 real estate tax for support of armories.

British Planes Blast Heinkel Works Second Night in Succession

Anglo Authorities Declare History's Greatest Bomb Load Was Dropped Upon Rostock; Belgians Are Reported Sabotaging Nazi Plans

By ROGER D. GREENE
(Associated Press War Editor)

Germany's great Heinkel aircraft works at Rostock came under explosive assault by R. A. F. bombers last night for the second night in a row, the London air ministry announced today, and British sources pictured the Baltic city as virtually left in ruins.

Aside from the Heinkel works, Rostock served as a major Nazi base for pouring troops and supplies into the Russian campaign.

British authorities said "the greatest weight of bombs" in R. A. F. history was dropped on Rostock in Thursday night's attack, leaving it even worse battered than Luebeck, twice its size. Luebeck, hit just once with the full force of the new R. A. F. bombing power on March 28, was said to have been 40 per cent devastated.

More than 400 tons of explosives were dropped in the two attacks, the British announced, and huge fires were left blazing in Rostock's Neptune shipyards.

The Heinkel works was heavily battered. "Even at the height of its power, the Luftwaffe never launched raids of such intensity," commented the London Star.

Other British night raiders pounded the docks at historic Dunkerque, scene of the British evacuation from France in 1940. Exeter is one of England's oldest cities, dating back to the days of the Roman conquest, and is famed for its museums, libraries and the great 12th Century Exeter Cathedral. Its population is 70,000.

Hundreds Are Left Homeless
The British said that hundreds of persons were left homeless and that it was feared the original estimate of at least 10 killed would be increased. Air-raid workers worked through the night, searching for victims trapped in the debris.

Victims included a number of teachers and family members of the headmaster of one of England's most famous schools, Exeter Academy.

The Germans admitted casualties and considerable damage in the R. A. F.'s raid on Rostock, which also is an ancient city with a 12th Century cathedral and the third largest university in the Reich, founded in 1419.

By daylight, the R. A. F. carried on its round-the-clock offensive, striking at Calais and in the (Continued on Page 12)

East to Get 50-Gallon 'Gas' Ration

Ickes Is to Fix Total Monthly Limit for Motorists, Not Leon Henderson

Survey Is Made

Senator Says Motorists Will Benefit Little From Rail Hauls

Washington, April 25 (AP)—Congressional circles heard today that the east's 10,000,000 motorists could expect a gasoline ration of 30 to 50 gallons a month, rather than the 2½ to 5 gallons a week previously estimated by a spokesman for the Office of Price Administration.

Rationing, made necessary by transportation difficulties including the sinking of coastwise tankers by enemy submarines, is scheduled to begin May 15 in 17 eastern states and the District of Columbia.

One lawmaker said he had been advised that the quota for private motorists would be fixed by Harold L. Ickes, petroleum coordinator, rather than by Price Administrator Leon Henderson.

If the punch-card limit goes as high as 50 gallons a month, the average car owner should feel little hardship. Officials of the American Automobile Association estimate that most motorists use about 55 gallons every 30 days.

A senator who has made a special study of the gasoline situation said the railroads now are hauling 600,000 barrels of oil and oil products a day, and soon are expected to step that rate up to 700,000 barrels. Nevertheless, he said, drivers in eastern states should not expect full relief from that source.

For one thing, he said, the railroads are having difficulty getting priorities on material needed to repair cars.

Senator Walsh (D., Mass.) declared Americans would cheerfully accept gasoline rationing if it would help win the war, but he said they want assurance it is necessary and that the rationing will be done "in a reasonable and equitable manner."

In testimony yesterday before a senate agriculture subcommittee, one of Ickes' aides, Ralph K. Davies, deputy petroleum coordinator, said that in "six months or so" it might be possible to relieve the eastern shortage. He told reporters later what he had in mind was not a substitute fuel, but use of alternate methods of transportation.

The automobile association's president, Thomas P. Henry, said yesterday that there was no such thing as "motoring as usual," and that long distance trips had declined between 30 and 40 per cent in the past three months.

Mexicans Seize Woman And Axis Gas Cache

Mexico City, April 25 (AP)—The newspapers Novedades reported today that an attractive woman spy, arrested after a gun battle at Merida, gave authorities the clue to a cache of aviation gasoline and submarine fuel on the Isle Mujeres off the tip of the Yucatan peninsula.

The newspaper identified the woman as a member of the German-American Bund in the United States, and had been returned there by plane after questioning. No one was injured in the gun battle, which occurred when the woman returned from a purported overnight fishing trip off the coast, the newspaper added.

It said 100 soldiers guarded the fuel cache until Mexican tankers arrived and pumped it dry.

Poughkeepsie Music Contestants

Area Will Undergo Test Blackout in Week as Surprise

All Air Raid Workers Are to Hold Themselves Alert; Public Is Cautioned

Kingston and Ulster county will experience a test blackout some time during next week, the time and date will not be announced in advance and the first the public will know of the incident will be when the air raid sirens and warning devices are sounded. All air raid workers are to hold themselves in readiness for prompt response and be on the alert at all times.

The public is cautioned to also be on the alert so that the test may be a success and when leaving premises without an occupant, all lights should be extinguished. This applies to any type of light which might be visible from outside the house and in particular to store night lights, outdoor yard lights and lights in hallways or other portions of buildings which under usual conditions are allowed to burn.

During the test blackout all persons must remain off the streets and highways and only air raid workers will be permitted to be out. Certain emergency workers who can produce a proper identification card showing that they have a right to be on the streets and highways will be allowed to continue their trip but wardens will stop all other persons and cause them to take shelter and all traffic will be stopped.

In Kingston several of the wards there will be "incidents" to test out the emergency equipment and air raid workers. Where these "incidents" will not be known until the time of the blackout when sealed orders will be opened by zone wardens who will then have their first information as to whether an "incident" is to take place in their zone. If an "incident" is to take place in any particular zone it will be handled by the air raid workers in the particular area where the scheduled "incident" is staged. All other wardens and workers will remain on their posts in the same manner as though an actual raid was taking place. This will be the first time that any real test has been held in the city under actual blackout conditions. Police, fire, first aid, ambulance corps and medical units will be called upon to operate under actual blackout conditions.

No advance notice of the blackout will be given the public until the air raid sirens are sounded when the wardens will proceed to their posts and the blackout will become effective. Under the present set-up air raid wardens will not be notified in advance of the sounding of the siren as was done at the last test but sufficient time will be allowed to reach posts before the street lights are extinguished in the city.

A. & P. Leases Half Of Millard Garage For Super Market

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., has leased half of the James Millard & Son garage on Broadway for use as a super market and alterations are now being made to turn the half of the building leased by the company into a modern store.

The alterations are being made by Contractor Lyman Schoonmaker, and it is expected that the building will be ready about June 1.

The other half of the Millard building was leased last year by the Board of Education and is being used as a trade or vocational school.

Recently Millard and Son Co., moved its office and garage to the building on Broadway, adjoining the former Palen plant.

President to Register

Washington, April 25 (AP)—President Roosevelt will register in the cabinet room of the White House Monday morning in the nationwide counting of men between 45 and 65 to ascertain availability of man-power for non-military war duty. Stephen Early, a White House secretary, told reporters today that investigation by the Selective Service System had disclosed the President was not exempt from registering even though he is commander in chief of the armed services.

Beaverbrook's Advocacy of New Front Follows His Personal Reconnaissance

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Wide World War Analyst)

The closer we draw to the great Russo-German clash, which likely will be the decisive battle of the war, the greater is the urge among allied peoples for the opening of a second front in western Europe to support the Soviet effort.

The most striking advocacy of this adventurous strategy comes from Britain's lease-lend coordinator in Washington, the powerful and outspoken Lord Beaverbrook, who apart from his official position is one of the world's famous newspaper publishers. The "Beaver," as he is called in London, urges his own country to "strike out violently . . . even recklessly" to aid the Muscovites.

He took this sensational stand before a distinguished audience at the annual dinner of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association in New York. Coming from one so close to Premier Churchill it has aroused enthusiastic hopes among supporters of a second front.

"This is a chance," said the "Beaver," "to bring the war to an

Colorful Festival Competition to End With Choral Work

Band Contests, Vocal Solos and Ensembles Mark Day's Activities in 3 Auditoriums

The Music Festival spirit prevails today at the local high school, Myron J. Michael School and the municipal auditorium as the three buildings are being utilized in the Regional New York State School Music Association Competition-Festival. A larger number of spectators today took advantage of hearing the best of the schools had to offer along musical lines than yesterday. By this evening an estimated number of participants will reach nearly 2,500 students.

Early this morning activities began at all three buildings. One of the most interesting is the twirling exhibitions at the municipal auditorium which will continue at that place throughout the entire day followed at 8:10 by the percussion or drum competitions. The majorettes from the various bands are displaying their ability in straight routines and in trick twirling. All are costumed with elaborate colorful uniforms, some in satin white trimmed with gold, others in bright yellow and maroon or in bright reds and blues. The adjudicator, Walter Finlayson of Katonah, comments on the various styles as they are being performed and suggests ways of improving the form of the contestant.

Band competitions were continued this morning in the high school auditorium and this afternoon.

Japs Pay Bloody Toll In Conflict

Mandalay's Defenders Put Up Stiff Fight 100 Miles From Key City

Airline Operates

Americans Supply Sino Forces From Indian Arsenals

(By The Associated Press)
Tank-led Japanese troops were reported threatening to roll back Lieut.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's Chinese-held left flank in the battle of Burma today as furious, confused fighting raged within 100 miles of the vital allied base at Mandalay.

"It is fairly clear that the (Japanese) drive has made progress," a communiqué said tersely.

Meanwhile, bomb-jittery Japan sent waves of planes to blast Chinese air bases nearest to the island empire.

A Tokyo broadcast said Japanese naval and army bombers, successively attacking the bases for the past three days, destroyed planes and hangars in western Chekiang Province, southern Chekiang and northern Kiangsi.

The bases have been under repeated attack since imperial Tokyo headquarters said it believed that the U. S. bombers which raided Japan for the first time a week ago today flew on to bases in China.

In Burma, the situation appeared extremely grave for the allies. Capture of Mandalay would virtually cut off the last allied-held link in the Burma Road, imperiling the 100-mile stretch from Mandalay to Lashio, and would also secure the Japanese flank for a possible land drive into India.

Chinese dispatches said the invaders were saying a bloody toll in their sweep to the north, asserting that 6,000 Japanese had been killed against 1,000 Chinese casualties in a single-week's fighting.

Latest front-line reports indicated that the out-numbered Chinese were still fighting stubbornly around Taunggyi, Hopong and Shwenik-Yang in an attempt to halt the nearest Japanese penetration to Mandalay.

A further Japanese advance in this sector would not only directly threaten Chinese communications on the Sittoung river front, to the west, but also would place the invaders astride routes running into Mandalay and Lashio.

British headquarters said Japanese bombers attacked Mandalay for the second time in two days. In the battle for the approaches to Australia, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported that Allied fighter planes "successfully intercepted" seven Japanese navy fighters "in sanguinary combat" over Port Moresby, off-bombed Allied base in southern New Guinea.

Other Allied fliers attacked the airfield at Japanese-held Lae, also in New Guinea.

In Melbourne, Gen. MacArthur led a procession of Allied officers in ceremonies marking Australia's memorial day, commemorating the Anzac heroes who stormed Gallipoli in the 1914-1918 World War 27 years ago.

An American air service employing both private and U. S. Army facilities is supplying China from India today with an increasing stock of essential military goods once carried over the Burma Road, according to dispatches from New Delhi, India.

Within a few months—certainly by next autumn—the planes will be delivering many thousands of tons monthly and approaching the capacity of the mountainous old truck road winding between Lashio and Kunming, declared an American assisting in the operations.

Only the highest priority material now is being flown in, but it includes all varieties of small arms, light ammunition, tools, machinery and medical supplies.

Aerial movement of most essential supplies was made necessary by Japanese occupation of Rangoon, the Burma supply port, which cut off the most direct connection with the Chungking government's bases.

Not until completion of a road from India to connect with the Burma road north of the area in which the Japanese are operating (Continued on Page Three)

GARDEN VICTORY

Grow Vitamins at Your Kitchen Door

Minimum Victory Garden

In a well drained, sunny, reasonably fertile plot, 20x30 feet, sufficient fresh vegetables qualifying as "protective foods," rich in vitamins, can be grown to supply a family of four for the harvest period of four months.

This may be considered to be the minimum Victory Garden called for by the national campaign. Any vegetables at all produced for family use will be a contribution to defense, releasing commercial foods for other uses. But a garden which will provide nutritious protective foods for the family all summer will be a real defense asset.

It may be enlarged, where suitable land is available, to grow food for preserving to be consumed over a much longer period.

This illustration which accompanies this article shows one way the minimum garden could be laid out. Of great importance is the selection of the foods to be grown; and the list included in the plan has been most carefully considered. It includes: Swiss chard or New Zealand spinach, both of which yield continuously through the hot summer, giving several crops from the same space, and both almost as rich in vitamins as spinach.

Leaf or cos lettuce, which will provide the basis for bowl salads, and are forty times richer in vitamin A than bleached head lettuce. Tomatoes sufficient for 100 servings in four months, or almost every day; because the tomato is perhaps the most valuable of all protective foods, palatable and nutritious whether cooked, served raw, or as juice.

Early Feeding Helps Grass

Keep Down the Weeds

What does early feeding for lawns really mean? It means just as soon as you can get on the lawn when winter is breaking up, as soon as or just before the frost has started to come out of the ground.

The ground may be frozen and have a light covering of snow, it may have thawed once and then frozen again. Naturally the feeding can't be done when the ground is too soft or too wet, as during the first day or two of a thaw. Early feeding should be done before that condition exists. If the soil condition is right, don't worry about the calendar.

Early feeding gets the plant food right down to the roots in time to be ready for use at the first signs of spring growth. Alternate freezing and thawing produces a soil structural condition called "honey combed." The soil is much more porous when it is honey combed; consequently, snow and rain will find their way through the soil much easier and deeper when this condition is present.

Plant food applied during this period is placed right around the grass roots by the melting snow or spring rains. Plant food must be available to the roots themselves and early application gets it there easier than any other way at any other time. The grass has not started its top growth during the best period for early application; therefore, plant food applied early does not require watering... a saving of time and money.

This early root activity, before top growth starts, assures the grass a deeper root system to sustain it during the hot, dry periods of the summer. When feeding is done too late in the spring, much of the plant food is used up by luxuriant top growth instead of root growth. Another big advantage of early root growth is the mat it builds up against weeds. Most all weeds require the warmer temperatures of late May and June to start active growth, whereas lawn grass has been growing since late March or early April.

It is practically impossible for weeds to become established when early feeding is done regularly. If the feeding is done late, the weeds are benefited as much as the lawn.

New York, April 25 (AP)—Speculative discouragement growing out of the fresh decline in prices since midweek resulted in further scattered stock market selling today and quotations generally ruled a shade lower.

Shares of industrial manufacturing companies, the motors and aircrafts had little support and the same was true of American Telephone which dipped to the lowest level since 1938. A few coppers, rails and oils held minor gains near the final hour. There was hardly any activity in rubbers, farm equipments and merchandizing stocks.

Soft spots included Westinghouse, Union Carbide and Johns-Manville which were under pressure yesterday.

Bonds and commodities were fairly steady.

In stocks there were no signs of improvement in buying even though the recent slide brought prices to the lowest average for the last nine years. Brokers attributed the apathy largely to the prospects for a sharp boost in corporation taxes.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, APRIL 25, 1942

YOUNG MUSICIANS WELCOMED

Kingston this week is honored with the presence of some 2,500 high school pupils taking part in the competition and festival of the New York State School Music Association.

Kingston is one of the eight cities in the state in which these regional festivals are being held. To the youthful musicians who have assembled in the Kingston High School and the Myron J. Michael School to take part in the musical event, the city extends a warm welcome. We hope that the boys and girls will long remember the hospitality of this old Colonial city.

The youth of this region are meeting here with hope high in their breasts that the schools they are representing may attain high honors.

In all contests of this character it is manifestly impossible for all contestants to be winners, but both to the winners and to the losers Kingston extends its best wishes, and the sincere hope that their visit here and their participation in this competition will enable them all to go far along the road of musical achievement.

Kingston has enjoyed their visit here, and its citizens express the hope that the students long will remember the two days that they spent here.

THE FOURTH REGISTRATION

Today is the first day of registration for all men between the ages of 45 and 65 years, and registration is compulsory. For the city of Kingston, registration headquarters are in the office of the Kingston Selective Service Board in the Central Post Office Building on Broadway.

Although not required for military service all men between the ages specified must register with the same procedure followed in previous registrations. Practically the only difference is that it is not planned to have order numbers for registrants as there will be no lottery.

Brigadier-General Ames T. Brown, New York State Director of Selective Service, has emphasized that in registering men must give their full names rather than any abbreviated forms that may have come into use, as the identification of any registrant sometimes depends upon the record of his name. Junior or Senior should be indicated if used.

There also is a place on the registration blank for the registrant's permanent address. This is very important as it determines the jurisdiction of his local board. His mailing address is given on line three of the card and this last address may be changed as often as necessary.

Although the purpose of the Fourth Registration is to accomplish an occupational inventory, those who will register should not expect to receive an occupational questionnaire for some time.

Every man between the ages of 45 and 65 years must register. This is not a voluntary, patriotic matter, it is mandatory duty prescribed by law. Those who do not register during the three-day period are subject to heavy penalties imposed by law.

All men should heed the warning and register at the earliest possible time. Sunday and Monday are the final days for registration.

KINGSTON NEEDS STRONG "Y"

With the Y.M.C.A. financial drive to raise $11,956 to carry on the program of character building among the boys of Kingston closing next Tuesday evening, it is the hope of every citizen who has the welfare of Kingston at heart that the drive will prove successful.

For more than 75 years the "Y" has been carrying on a program among the boys of the community, and that the program has been successful is shown by the lives of many of the outstanding men of Kingston, who, as boys were active in all of the work carried on at the association.

In these days of the second World War many appeals are being made, and all are worthy ones deserving of full support. It is also essential that we take care of the needs of our growing youth.

The program of the "Y" is to continue to help the boys build healthy bodies and clean minds that as men they may be able to better meet the responsibilities that will face them in later years.

During the past year the doors of the "Y" have been thrown open to all who had the interest of the city, county and nation at heart. Soldiers passing through the city on the way to training camps have been granted the privileges of the association without charge.

Many and diversified groups have met from week to week in the association to enjoy its facilities and to discuss important questions. Numerous civic groups have used the facilities of the association including the Boy Scouts, Farm and Home Bureau, Council of Religious Education, Central Business Men's Association, Brotherhood of Railway Mail Clerks, the Ministerial Association, Federation of Men's Clubs, City Bowling League and the American Red Cross to mention a few.

The Y.M.C.A. is playing an important part in the civic, fraternal and religious life of Kingston. It has and is extending its facilities to all of the boys of the city, irrespective of race or creed.

Kingston needs the "Y" and the "Y" needs Kingston.

MUSIC'S TURN

Music is feeling the war. Phonograph records are the latest victim. Shellac, a vital feature in record-making, comes from the East Indies. Hence no more shellac.

Boogie-woogie addict and symphony lover will suffer alike from the shortage. Perhaps both will have to go back to whistling, and that may be another example of the horrors of war.

Wars are seldom won by retreating to positions previously prepared.

They also serve who only stay at home and take care of things.

TREATING BROKEN RIBS

For a number of years, part of my work was the examination of thousands of university students each year, and the care of all injuries caused by football, hockey, boxing, wrestling, and other sports. Among the "repairs" frequently needed was the handling of broken ribs and tearing of the muscles between the ribs—the intercostal muscles.

For the repair of these broken ribs and torn muscles and ligaments, I used the usual strapping up of the chest by adhesive tape. Adhesive tape is very strong and after having the patient breathe most of the air from the lungs, the chest was strapped a little more than half way round so that the both ends of the tape were on the sound side.

This strapping holds the broken ends of the bone together, prevents pain in breathing, and enables the patient to turn over in bed without pain or movement of the broken ends of bones or torn muscles. As far as I could see, this was the ideal treatment for such injuries and it has been the usual treatment given by all physicians.

It comes as a real surprise, then, to learn that a recent satisfactory method of treating these rib and muscle injuries permits no strapping whatever but simply the injection of a local anesthetic—procaine hydrochloride—under the skin at or near the exact spot of the injury. This method is reported by Drs. Paul H. Harmon, Dan R. Baker, and Robert D. Kornegay, Sayre, Pa., in the Journal of the American Medical Association. In some cases epinephrine (adrenalin) is added to prolong the effect of the procaine hydrochloride.

Among the advantages claimed for this method are that (1) pain is immediately relieved, (2) the air going into and coming out of the lungs is the normal amount and not decreased as when chest is strapped, (3) usual excess coughing is reduced and no drugs to relieve coughing are necessary. This means that the patient with the proper amount of oxygen going into the lungs, and the waste carbon dioxide coming out in the normal amount, is really in a more normal condition physically than when strapped with adhesive tape.

The point I wish to make is that should your physician not strap up a chest injury but use a local anesthetic, he is using a method that has been found successful also in another common injury, that is a sprained ankle.

SUGAR SAVERS

To conserve sugar, the home economists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture suggest making fewer pies, cakes and sugar-rich desserts, using more fruits—fresh, canned and dried; gradually reducing the quantity of sugar in beverages, especially if the usual quantity leaves some undissolved in the bottom of the cup; eating cereals with little or no sugar, to savor their distinctive flavors; serving any very sweet foods, like preserves, last—never before foods that are less sweet, because this contrast makes one want extra sugar.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

One of the most interesting conversationalists in Kingston in the days of not so long ago was the late Judge Augustus H. Van Buren, whose last public office was that of special city judge of the city court.

For years he was one of the outstanding trial lawyers of the Ulster county bar and during the many years he practiced law in Kingston he was connected with many of the famous trials that were held in the court house here.

In addition to his law practice Judge Van Buren was in demand as a public speaker. I recall that in the early spring of 1925 the judge wrote his reminiscences of Civil War days and the years that followed in Kingston, which appeared in The Freeman and made highly interesting reading.

The judge in his reminiscences recalled many men and youth of the city who played an active role in the history of Kingston.

Another man long prominently identified with the life of Ulster county was Ralph LeFevre, for 55 years editor and publisher of the New Paltz Independent. He died on March 17, 1925, in his home in that village, aged 80 years. At the time of his death he was one of the oldest newspaper editors in active service in this country.

In 1903 he wrote the "History of New Paltz and Its Old Families" and for many years from time to time ran a series of historical articles in his newspaper on the history of Ulster county.

Another well known man in Kingston was Dr. Alfred S. Vrooman who died on March 19, 1925. He resided for many years on Pearl street. During the days of the Spanish-American War he served as surgeon at the Kingston recruiting station. Dr. Vrooman at one time served as health officer of the town of Marlborough.

I also recall that the Craftsman's Club of Rondout Lodge No. 343, Free and Accepted Masons was first organized at a meeting held on Monday evening, March 16, 1925, at a meeting held in the rooms in the Masonic Building, at Broadway and Strand.

Edward Geschwinder was elected the first president of the club. The other officers elected that night were Ralph Deys as vice president; Charles W. Shultis as secretary and treasurer, and Bernard Forst as chairman of the entertainment and refreshment committee.

Today in Washington

Despite All Talk About Seriousness of War, Public Does Not Seem Yet to Realize Fact
By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 25—It is imperative to win the war at any cost. This point has been properly made again and again and it is what must be done in a war of survival.

But it is doubtful whether the public realizes the staggering totals involved. It is doubtful whether the public realizes how important it is to shorten the war by all-out effort at the earliest possible moment lest the cost prove breaking to the American people for generations to come.

The latest budget figures announced call for a budget of 77 billion dollars for the fiscal year beginning next July. Out of this vast sum about 17 billions will be spent for war purposes. Even if one third is paid by taxes and miscellaneous levies, it still will leave a deficit of about 52 billions.

This means that in one year the government will have a deficit more than twice as large as the administration's deficit during all the depression years.

If the 71 billions are spent in the coming fiscal year for war, it will mean that 71 out of a possible 117 billions of national income will go for war leaving about 46 billion for the normal civilian segment of national income.

The big question is whether America can spend that much in so short a space of time. The President at his Friday press conference hinted at a larger production program. This seems incredible but he rightly pointed out that every program projected thus far has seemed fantastic in size and yet we are beginning to meet the goals.

It is desirable that America's fiscal plans be told to the world. Germany and Japan, who have to squeeze their labor to the last ounce of energy to carry on their war program can easily infer from the size of America's expenditures that the mightiest armament program ever dreamed of by the most extreme military planner of the past is about to be exceeded many times by the United States.

It is true the sums are so large that little thought has been given to how they will ever be paid. But the financial resources of the American people are immense and the sums being spent will circulate within the United States in kind of revolving fund which will enable the government to recapture by taxes a substantial part of the spending and to borrow the rest.

Even though taxes are high, tremendous amount will flow into the national stream and will be absorbed in the form of increase pay envelopes by millions of people. Here character of the treasury's effort to secure the taxation of the citizens in buying war bonds. No plan of forced savings is being contemplated, but there will be a drive to get voluntary contributions. The American people will therefore, lend their government the money with which to carry on the war and it may not be necessary to make the serious and drastic cuts in real wages that have been forced on continental countries.

If, on the other hand, the wartime controls against inflationary prices and the plans for rationing certain necessary items used in the citizen's daily life do not meet the situation, there will have to be further restrictions.

The character of the restrictions and the extent to which the war costs will mount will depend on how long the war lasts. The administration's intention apparently is to spend without regard to cost at the earliest possible moment and bring the armament program into action as soon as human ingenuity can produce that result. This means that if the war can be shortened by a concentrated drive in 1942 and 1943, much of the money may never be spent and it may be possible subsequently for the American people to spread the burden of repayment over a long period of time. The size of a national debt is related to the resources of the people and the national wealth and unquestionably the facilities being provided by the huge government funds will add considerably to the total wealth and to our wealth-producing plants and instrumentalities. ## Washington In Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—Take some thousands of people, set them down in Washington, far from their homes, and you might expect them to lose track of their former way of life.

Don't be too sure. Here's a story that proves folks remain pretty much the same folks, even in a hurly-burly, war-distraught city like this:

About a month ago, the Reserve Division of the adjutant-general office in the war department was put on a seven-day week. This was quite a blow to those employees scheduled to work on Sunday. Many of them were steady church-goers.

It happens that the office of the Chief of Chaplains is right in the same building, one of the new temporary structures along the grassy bank of the Potomac.

The employees sent one of their chief, Gen. William E. Arnold, who happens to be a Roman Catholic priest. One chaplain is kept on duty in the office every Sunday, and the delegate asked General Arnold if this chaplain couldn't take time to conduct a brief service during lunch hour.

Gen. Arnold passed the idea on to Chaplain Glenn J. Witherspoon, a Congregationalist, who was to be on duty the following Sunday.

Chaplain Witherspoon, of course agreed, and suggested they use a little room in the chaplain's department, holding perhaps 35 people. The employees delegate said he didn't think that would be large enough and he was right.

The 15-minute informal service was held in a room about 50 by 170 feet, and the space around the desks was packed with some 300 persons.

"I believe everybody enjoyed it," one employee told me. "There were Roman Catholics and Protestants—even quite a few Jewish people. They all found it worth while to spend half of their lunch hour there. But then, you know, army chaplains have to be able to talk to all sects. When they're out on post they minister to all, and nobody asks what church they belong to."

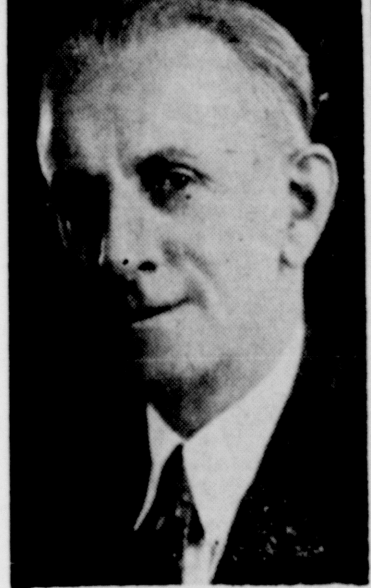

The next week, Chaplain Arthur S. Dodgson, a Baptist, led another 300 in a few hymns, prayers, and read from the Scriptures. The next week, Lutheran Chaplain Herman H. Heuer was on duty. Attendance was about the same.

The following week, the Reserve Division decided to keep only a skeleton staff of about 73 on duty, but out of that group more than 50 showed up. Of the remaining 23, some probably were Roman Catholics who had been to early Mass, some were guards who couldn't leave the doors. That leaves maybe eight or ten "backsliders" who didn't come to hear Chaplain Albert N. Corpening, another Baptist, preach on the first known recorded words of Jesus spoken as he stood among the doctors in the temple: "How is it that ye have sought me? Wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?"

Clothes a 16-Year-Old Boy Should Wear to a Dance Determined by the Community

The clothes a boy aged 16 wears to a dance are determined mainly by the community. If it is a formal one he would wear a tuxedo; if he is very small for his age then a dark blue suit, white shirt and collar and plain dark tie probably would be more becoming. It must also be remembered that the longer the war lasts the less suitable will formal clothes seem.

This is in answer to the mother who asks what her 16-year-old son should wear to a formal dance at a country club.

Overcoming Expensive Marking
Dear Mrs. Post: I am the bride's grandmother and I may not have kept up with the times in regard to details of preparing a trousseau. L. whereas I think it should be L. McW. L. Will you tell us which way is today's right way?

Answer: I am sorry to have to say that you are right—not because the marking of the silver which is easily engraved with as many initials as one may need, but because of the cost of embroidering with the additional initials L. McW. L. However, it is proper for her to drop the McW. entirely if she chooses. (Merely as an example, I use only two initials.)

Dear Mrs. Post: Someone tells me that regular forks are now used for salad and dessert and that it is not necessary any longer to have salad forks. In fact, she spoke as though it were not really stylish to have them. With a generous supply of salad forks on hand you can understand why I am concerned.

Answer: Use the salad forks if you have them, certainly. The point is merely that it is not necessary to have special forks for salad, or for fish or for dessert or anything else for which a medium-sized fork is used.

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad, however, to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "PERFECT TABLE SILVER." Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Post, in care of The Kingston Freeman, P. O. Save Your Tires
Let's take a few tips from the experts. It will pay in the long run in terms of greater enjoyment, greater economy, and far greater safety.

1. Have worn tires retreaded at a reliable dealer's.
2. Regularly check inflation.
3. Stop and start slowly.
4. Avoid curb stones, pavement breaks, and sharp objects.
5. Check wheel alignment and toe-in every six months.
6. Change wheel positions according to advice from your regular dealer.
7. Take it easy on the curves.
8. Gently but firmly restrain the toe of your right foot—40 m.p.h. is plenty fast.
9. Avoid deterioration from standing over long periods.
10. Walk more!

The physician carefully scratched out a part of the prescription and handed it back, with 10 cents, remarking: "You can have that filled for a dime. What I scratched out was for your nerves."

Epitaph
He tried to cross the railroad track before the rushing train. They put the pieces in a sack. But couldn't find a brain.

Chapter 15 At The Bridge

"STEVE, darling, I'm going to join the Red Cross," Vicky announced at the breakfast table the next morning. "Do you suppose I'll get one of those snappy uniforms like you wear?"

Stephanie smiled at her cousin. "You can have your uniform tailored at Chez Manteuil if you want to pay the price."

"That's a marvelous idea. I think I will. And it's going to be such fun really doing something."

But by the end of the week, Vicky had decided it wasn't fun at all to spend tedious hours making sandwiches, packing them.

"Mountains of them, I've made," she groaned. "I certainly didn't expect to spend my time slicing cheese and baloney. If I never see another sandwich, I'll be perfectly happy."

Stephanie shook her head. "Somebody has to do it. Look, we still haven't enough for the 10 o'clock canteen." And she attacked another stack of bread vigorously.

The door behind her opened and Vicky, drooping in a chair, suddenly came to life.

"Why, Henri, darling. What-ever are you doing here?"

Stephanie glanced up, noticed for the dozenth time how very good-looking Henri was.

"I am looking for two charming young ladies who, I hope, will have dinner with me," he said looking from one to the other.

"What a break!" Vicky jumped up, straightened her very smartly tailored coat. "Of course we'll go."

"But Stephanie shook her head. "Can't, Henri. Too much to do here."

"Oh come now," he urged. "Surely you can't be expected to work all the time."

"I should say not. Don't be a drudge, Steve. Come on."

But Stephanie insisted and a moment later they were off, Vicky clinging to Henri's arm, sparkling with more enthusiasm than she had shown all week.

She forgot about them for the next few busy hours. And at ten when it was time to take out the canteen, she drove the station wagon herself up a back street to Van Ness, north to the bridge approach.

She stopped the car at the point beyond which civilians were forbidden to go, blinked her lights by way of signal to the sentry. While she waited, she relaxed, resting her head wearily against the steering wheel. She wished the sentry would hurry.

In a few moments she blinked the car lights again. Still no response. Finally, she honked the horn, two short, sharp blasts. Again, no answer.

Tragedy
INSTANTLY, apprehension took hold of her. Something was wrong. There was a sentry on duty here all hours of the day and night. Besides, he would be expecting her.

She stepped quickly out of the car and, quite well aware that she was on forbidden ground, ran up the embankment to the wide cement bulwark that held back the black, sucking waters of the bay. She could hear the slosh, slosh of the water but the thick curtain of fog shut off vision of everything save the narrow walk under her feet. She shuddered, realizing that it would take only one misstep to plunge her into icy water. Then suddenly a gust of wind from the ocean pushed back part of the fog for an instant. Before the thick cloud closed in again, Stephanie saw—or thought she saw—a small boat. But it disappeared again before she could be sure.

"Halloo there! It's the canteen!" she called, moving cautiously along the cement wall.

Fear dogged her every step and her heart hammered thunderously. When, a moment later, she bumped squarely into a khaki-clad figure, she cried out.

"What are you doing here?" a deep voice demanded sharply.

"I'm the Red Cross driver. Brought the canteen. But there wasn't any sentry. He didn't."

The soldier grasped her arm, guided her back along the wall. "No sentry! That's impossible."

But it wasn't impossible. When he turned the beam of his powerful flashlight down onto the black water below them, they saw why. In the shallow water, half-submerged, lay the body of a man—face down, moving only with the steady pulse of the ripples.

They sounded the alarm, then, and the thick fog gave up dozens of soldiers and, finally, the sinister discovery that the soldier who had only a few minutes before taken up his post, had drowned in less than three feet of water!

But how could he! Stephanie, horrified, realized she would never forget the sight of that limp, dripping form lifted out of the sticky black mud.

"Keep your mouth shut about this," a soldier advised her as he helped her back to the station wagon. "Probably an accident. But if it wasn't—" he finished with a shrug.

"But—how—if he'd fallen off the wall, wouldn't he have called for help?"

"Probably. But you just forget about the whole thing."

Slip Of The Tongue
EVEN by the time she got home, Stephanie was still trembling, unnerved by the shock. When, stepping into the wide hall, she heard voices in the living room, she was tempted to fly to her own room.

But Vicky had heard her come in.

"Hi, Steve, darling, come in."

And as Stephanie pulled off her gloves, walked toward the canteen fire burning on the hearth where Henri and Vicky sat enjoying the warmth and a tall drink, she suddenly hated them both. For proceeding with "pleasure as usual" when there was great work to be done, when the life of their nation was at stake, when young soldier boys lost their lives in mysterious, awful tragedy.

"Goodness, darling, you look exhausted," Vicky said carelessly. Fatigue, and fright and anger cut the cheekbones on Stephanie's temper. "I am exhausted," she snapped. "Maybe if you'd just seen what I saw, you wouldn't be so damnably indifferent."

And before she realized what she was doing, she was pouring out details of the awful secret the bay had offered up.

"At the approach to the Golden Gate Bridge, you say?" Henri questioned her sharply.

And too late, Stephanie remembered the soldier's gruff warning to "keep her mouth shut about this." Too late, she recognized more than average interest in Henri's attitude.

"It was ghastly," she went on, more calmly, trying hard to disguise her discovery with a disarming smile. "But an accident no doubt. Sorry if I snapped at you. I'm just upset, I guess."

"But of course, darling," Vicky sympathized. "Who wouldn't be? Let's talk of something pleasant. Like the party at Millers' tonight."

And for the next half hour, Vicky painted brilliant word pictures of the charming Millers, their distinguished guests, their deep devotion to Henri and to their charming neighbor.

"It's a pity you didn't come with us," Vicky said finally.

A pity indeed, Stephanie agreed silently, studying the profile Henri turned to her as he sat staring into the fire apparently engrossed in his own thoughts.

She might then have been better able to discover just what Henri's secret was.

Rotary Eldership Plan Is Adopted By Presbyterians

At the annual meeting of the congregation of the Roundout Presbyterian Church held Thursday evening in the chapel of the church what is known as the rotary eldership plan was unanimously adopted, and a committee was named to draft the plan and submit it at an adjourned meeting to be held Thursday evening, May 21.

Since the downtown church was established more than a century ago the elders of the church had been elected to serve for life under the proposed plan they will be elected to serve for a specified term.

The committee named to prepare the plan for submission is comprised of the Rev. D. Linton Doherty, pastor of the church;

Dorr E. Monroe, president of the board of trustees, and Arthur H. Russell, one of the elders of the church.

This rotary eldership plan has been in operation in a number of Presbyterian churches throughout the nation for a number of years, and is said to work efficiently. The plan has been agitated in the downtown church for several years, but to definite action had been taken until it was brought up and approved at the annual meeting last night.

The pastor presided as moderator and the congregation elected Charles A. Terwilliger, Samuel H. Peyer and Byron V. Stevens as trustees of the church to serve for terms of three years each.

Mr. Terwilliger, who was re-elected last night, has served as trustee and secretary of the board of the church for 31 consecutive years.

Superintendent Irving W. Scott gave an interesting report of the activities of the church school during the past year, while Bernice Lowe and Lois Wolff, members of the class of Miss Louise Van Wageningen, gave reports of the work done by the class.

A report of the activities of the Women's Missionary Society prepared by Mrs. Arthur M. Craig, who was unable to be present, was read by Mrs. Frank McCausland.

Mrs. McCausland also gave a report of the activities of the Service Club of the church while Miss Grace H. Terwilliger submitted the report of the Ladies' Aid Society.

President Monroe of the board of trustees reported that the church had invested in $2,900 worth of defense bonds during the past year.

Before the annual meeting was held the Ladies' Aid Society served the annual congregational dinner. A group of the women served the dinner. Included in the group were: Miss Grace A. Terwilliger, Mrs. Charles Terwilliger, Mrs. Oscar Goodell, Mrs. Raymond Van Valkenburgh, Mrs. Samuel H. Peyer, Mrs. Conrad J. Heiselman, Mrs. Mrs. Conrad J. Heiselman, Mrs. Mrs. Conrad J. Heiselman.

Army Newcomers Take Out Billions In Life Insurance

Billions of dollars worth of economic protection for their home folks have been purchased by soldiers in the army of the United States in the special drive which closed last Sunday midnight, to increase applications for National Service Life Insurance policies.

Preliminary figures indicate that Private John Doe has an average policy of approximately $5,000 and that the number written has broken all previous records for life insurance underwriting. Overall estimates for the army, navy, marine corps and coast guard indicate more than 2,500,000 applications for National Service Life Insurance have been written for newcomers to the nation's armed forces since October 8, 1940, when the insurance was authorized by an act of congress.

Allocations of these figures to their respective services have not been made, but the army has the largest segment of this total.

Mothers are the most numerous beneficiaries, with fathers, wives, and sisters following in that order. This also holds true of the 22,000 commercial policies, totalling over $41,000,000, the premiums on which are guaranteed by the government while the insured is in the service.

Beginning this week, all persons entering the armed forces for active duty must apply for insurance within 120 days from date of entry to obtain it without a physical examination. The feature of the campaign just closed was the privilege allowed all members of the armed forces on active duty to obtain life insurance informally in front of a typical service club and urging them to obtain insurance.

The most dramatic agent used, however, proved to be the overseas radio. Following the sending of radiograms to announce that American soldiers around the world could apply for a policy by radio, arrangements had been made to relay these applications by boats and clippers.

Prior to this overseas broadcast, more than a thousand radio broadcast stations in continental United States had joined the army drive to disseminate information about the availability of this low-cost war-time life insurance.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Near Miss

Elkhart, Ind. — Police called to a laundry where strike pickets had thrown a rock through a window learned the strikers had meant no harm.

The pickets, it turned out, had thrown at a rabbit and hit the window instead. Frank Del Reono, one of the group, gave the laundry $150 to buy new glass.

Confusion

Paris, Tenn. — Firemen answered the frantic telephone call, but couldn't find the fire. Just another false alarm, they figured, but they did spot a fire in a house several blocks away.

The family there apologized. They had moved several days previously, and in the excitement had given the old address.

Smoke Screen

Kinston, N. C. — Attorney Thomas J. White saw smoke boiling out of the courthouse windows. He called the fire department.

When the firemen arrived and came storming into the courtroom they found several hundred air raid wardens watching a "poison gas" demonstration.

Political Merger

Logan, Utah — When the returns were in at the Utah State Agricultural College student election, two of the successful candidates weren't on hand to receive congratulations.

George Lacey, vice president, and Miss Karma Hill, chairman of the election committee, were married a few hours before the polls closed.

Scare 'Em to Bed

Clay Center, Kas. — Farmer Harlan Perrill had difficulty getting his chickens to bed at a decent hour.

Only the toot of a nearby train whistle finally drove them to roost.

Now Perrill sounds a couple capricious notes on his son's French horn, waits for the rush, and then latches the door.

Out of Date

Seattle — County Treasurer Ralph Stacy mailed a rural Oregon resident an 82-cent tax rebate in 2-cent stamps.

By return mail he got the stamps back with this reply: "Two-cent stamps is out of date down here. Please send me something at par."

Time and a Half

Kansas City — The city owes John C. Robinson two hours overtime.

Arrested on a misdemeanor charge, Robinson was sentenced to one day and given credit for already serving it.

He misunderstood and returned to his cell. Jailers found him two hours later and released him.

Service Tip

Chicago — Tip to mothers, wives and sweethearts who send cakes to men in the services, suggested by Mrs. James A. Day: "An excellent way to pack cakes is in popped corn. The resiliency of the corn absorbs the bumps, and the recipient gets not only his cake in good condition but also a welcome supply of pop-corn."

Blind Bowling

Chicago — The bowling tournament played next month by Henry H. Hecht will be for fun rather than skill. Both men and women bowlers will be invited to compete in the three-day tourney.

The novelty will be that all the pins will be hidden behind a curtain.

And, of course, you already know about the "beaut" that's worn by Mont Woolley!

Most of the Chinese youngsters who appear with British and American flying cadets in the new war aviation picture, "Thunderbirds," marched overland 700 miles from the interior of China to an ocean liner that brought them to the hazardous journey to this country.

Now stationed in Arizona, they came from the Central Military Academy, which they call the West Point of China. When they complete their schooling in Arizona, which is the only institution in this country where Chinese fliers are being trained, they will be sent immediately to action against the Japanese says Capt. Davis Tsing, their English-speaking instructor.

"Just give those boys a crack at the Japs," says Tsing, "and they'll show you some action of which you'll be gloriously proud."

"They've got a debt to settle for Uncle Sam, too, you know—as well as for China!"

The commission, in an order of February 17, ruled that the highway be carried across the Crawford branch of the railroad at the railroad's existing grade and further ordered that automatic, flashing light signals be installed.

The railroad company, in seeking the re-hearing, expressed doubts as to the possibility of installing the light signals at a location that would afford positive protection, owing to the unusual track conditions caused by the infrequent use of the rails.

Special Schools
The U. S. Marine Corps maintains special armorer schools where mechanically-minded Leuthenecks are taught the mechanism of rifles, pistols and machine guns.

Panama has prohibited the use of motor tires worn down to the fabric.

Transferred

PVT. MAX TOFFEL.

Pvt. Max Toffel, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Toffel of 70 Henry street, is now stationed at New Orleans, La. He was transferred from Fort Bragg, N. C., where he was stationed since his induction in the U. S. Army, February 10.

Mike Mazurki Is Intent on Playing Ugliest Film Roles

By TED GILL

Hollywood, April 25 (Wide World)—Unlike some actors who aspire to be the handsome matinee idols of the screen, here's one guy who is striving to become the ugliest man in pictures.

He's Mike Mazurki, a Manhattan College graduate who appeared as a half-naked moron in his first picture, and now wants to make a steady business of playing such roles.

"Yey," says Mike, who dabbled a bit in football and professional wrestling before he got the movie acting bug. "I have the appearance of a moron and I think I can carve myself quite a career playing those parts. In fact, I'm even studying medical books on the reactions of a moron."

Albeit his mind is full of ethical thoughts and he boasts he can spout poetry as good as Gene Tunney, Mike has one of the best sets of cauliflower ears you've ever seen since the days of Battling Nelson.

Mike likes acting better than he does professional wrestling because: "Too much money from too many wrestling bouts makes me affluent—and when I'm affluent I have a tendency to want to straighten out my ears."

"If I straighten out my ears, I can only make $200 at wrestling, because I don't look so fierce and I'd lose my chance of realizing my present ambition—to become the screen's only literate moron."

The movies pay Mike $500 a week for being a screen moron in his current picture, "The Moon and Six Pence," in which he ironically gets tossed around a wrestling ring by a woman grappler.

For that dough, neighbor, would you pull in your ears?

Movie makeup artists report an approximate ten per cent increase in moustache-wearing by actors since Pearl Harbor.

It's a matter of masculine psychology, they say, born of a war influence to make men feel more manly around their womenfolk.

Besides lip dusters, the growth of chin muffs also has been on the increase. Ronald Colman, Van Heflin and Laurence Olivier have all grown beards, matching that of Orson Welles.

And, of course, you already know about the "beaut" that's worn by Mont Woolley!

Now stationed in Arizona, they came from the Central Military Academy, which they call the West Point of China. When they complete their schooling in Arizona, which is the only institution in this country where Chinese fliers are being trained, they will be sent immediately to action against the Japanese says Capt. Davis Tsing, their English-speaking instructor.

"Just give those boys a crack at the Japs," says Tsing, "and they'll show you some action of which you'll be gloriously proud."

"They've got a debt to settle for Uncle Sam, too, you know—as well as for China!"

The commission, in an order of February 17, ruled that the highway be carried across the Crawford branch of the railroad at the railroad's existing grade and further ordered that automatic, flashing light signals be installed.

The railroad company, in seeking the re-hearing, expressed doubts as to the possibility of installing the light signals at a location that would afford positive protection, owing to the unusual track conditions caused by the infrequent use of the rails.

Farmers Urged To File Requests

Ones Who Need Student
Help Asked to Act

Ithaca, N. Y., April 25—Farmers who want one or more students to work and live on their farms this summer are asked to file at once an application form with the U. S. Employment service in the county.

This is necessary to help determine the demand for students. The New York State Agricultural Defense Committee says school officials are pushing the program, but they have to know the demand to plan for the supply.

Students in the "Farm Cadet Victory Service" are to be at least 14 years of age, with preference given to those at least 16.

The program is sponsored by the State Agricultural Defense Committee, with the cooperation of the State Department of Education, the U. S. Employment Service, and the Extension Service of the College of Agriculture. It is hoped to provide some labor relief for farmers during summer and harvest.

Schools Handle Enrollment
Enrollment of high school students in the cities and villages is being handled by school authorities; placing them in jobs is the responsibility of the Employment Service. The plan is based on suggestions from farm men and women at 31 joint meetings of county agricultural defense and land use planning committees, and state and federal officials.

Briefly, the farmer specifies, in the application form, that workers will be given board, room and laundry service either in his home or at a nearby one; that he will pay a certain starting wage; and that he will treat the students fairly and help them to become helpful on the farm.

The farmer is also asked to submit information about his farm, such as location, acres of tillable land, number of cows milked, and a few other facts, including nearness to churches.

The farmer agrees to pay the student's traveling expenses to the farm, but not necessarily back unless the worker stays for the season or for the period agreed upon in advance.

The important thing now, it is pointed out, is for farmers to file an application form now. Final selection of the farms for student labor is in the hands of the U. S. Employment Service in the counties. Application forms may be had from the county agent or the nearest office of the Employment Service.

Kiwanians Hear Of Area's Resort

Edward D. Jones Tells of Lake Mohonk

Edward D. Jones was the guest speaker at Kiwanis Thursday giving an interesting talk on "Lake Mohonk and the World of Today."

He supplemented his talk with beautiful color pictures of the lake, acres of flower gardens, the extensive private walks, etc., which have made the resort famous. Mohonk, built on the cliffs above the lake from which it takes its name, is 73 years old.

Mr. Jones said that a stranger, at his first approach by why of Mountain Rest, might feel the Mohonk is quite restricted but those who are in the habit of taking advantage of the hospitality of Mohonk appreciate the fact that Mountain Rest is as far as automobiles are allowed and from this point the guests proceed by horse and carriage to the main house.

Mohonk has been noted for years as a conference place. Many Peace Conferences have been held and meetings in the interest of the American Indian and small independent countries.

At the last conference, two representatives from the Philippines were present and it was thought while at Mohonk were favorable to the United States and might have had quite a little to do with the present defense of the islands.

The water of Lake Mohonk, he said, is supposed to be partly from the glacier period. At present 90 per cent of the water in the lake comes from springs which feed from the bottom of the lake. Where the source is still a mystery. In the summer time the water at the top of the lake in the portion where it is used as a swimming beach, is about 75 degrees while in the deep portion of the lake, 90 feet deep, the temperature is about 40 degrees.

In the winter time this resort is operated as a private school for 15 to 20 boys.

Break With France? It's Nothing New in U. S. Affairs

Wide World Feature

Frenchmen provided much of the philosophy behind the American Revolution. France helped the 13 colonies win the Revolutionary War. France presented the Statue of Liberty. French politics fought shoulder to shoulder with Yankee doughboys in the World War.

And yet history is only repeating itself when headlines blazon "U. S.-French Relations Strained." Four times before now have France and the United States been at odds.

Not counting the bloody French-Indian wars before the colonies became a nation, the first difficulties between the two countries developed in 1793.

In that year France and England began another war in their long series. France expected America to live up to the mutual aid treaty signed during the Revolutionary War. But George Washington proclaimed American neutrality. He asserted that the old alliance expired with the death of the French monarchy.

into America, tried to outfit prisoners to war on British shipping. Already disturbed by the excesses of the French Revolution, America flared up, insisted that Genet be replaced. France didn't like it.

Then the Jay treaty between England and America angered the French still further. American envoys sent to France to remedy the situation were called upon by the French minister Talleyrand for a $200,000 bribe. John Adams made the facts public and the situation became known as the XYZ affair. Public indignation rallied around the fighting slogan, "Millions for defense, not one cent for tribute."

The French started harassing American shipping. French men-of-war sank our ships off the South Atlantic coast. Congress authorized raising an army, approved construction of 12 new warships. The U. S. frigate Constitution captured a French frigate. Three hundred American merchantmen were armed. It was undeclared war.

But Talleyrand backed down, disavowed the insults. In 1801 a new convention was signed, abrogating the troublesome first alliance.

The United States was busy at the time with its Civil War, but soon after that ended, Yankee envoys were ready as if to expel the would-be monarch. The French withdrew.

It was nearly 60 years later that an American soldier said in Paris, "Lafayette, we are here."

Soon after that Thomas Jefferson became disturbed because powerful France had taken over New Orleans and the Mississippi valley. Anti-French feeling arose, died down when Napoleon in 1803 agreed to sell the territory. The United States made the Louisiana purchase, its biggest bargain yet, for $23,667,622.

In 1812 it was almost a tossup whether America would fight England or France. Both countries were violating American shipping and international rights once more. But the British were rougher and American sympathies were pro-French. So the War of 1812 was with the British.

It was another Napoleon who caused the last crisis until now. Louis Napoleon Bonaparte, nephew of the conqueror. In 1861 he sent an army to Mexico to set up Maximilian of Austria as ruler of that proposed addition to the French empire.

The convention sessions will be held in the municipal auditorium while the convention headquarters will be in the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Bart A. Oddo is president of the association and Edward J. O'Neil is secretary.

The executive committee of the association will meet in the Governor Clinton Hotel on Friday evening, June 5, while the convention will open in the auditorium on Saturday morning, June 6, at 9:30 o'clock. Mayor Edmundo will officially open the convention.

Through the courtesy of Bert Gildersleeve of the Broadway Theatre and Everett Kennedy of the Kingston Theatre sales of defense stamps have been conducted in the lobbies of the playhouses once a week for the past several weeks. Speeches made from the stages by William McVey, Jr., urging theatre patrons to purchase defense stamps in the lobbies added greatly to the sales.

The following ladies kindly donated their time at the stamp booths: Miss Helen Westbrook, Mrs. Malcolm Tuttle, Miss Eleanor Easton. The volunteer office of Civilian Defense cooperated with names from their lists of volunteers as follows: Mrs. James T. O'Reilly, Miss Jane Rafferty, Mrs. Edward Reynolds, Miss E. Fahr, Mrs. Otto Weaver, Miss Hazel Kaufman, Mrs. Donald Gemmell.

The vice-chairman of defense stamps all bonds for Ulster county, Mrs. Howard A. Lewis, wishes to thank Mrs. Edward B. Loughran at the defense office for arranging schedules of workers, and all the workers for their patriotic service. Girl scouts senior service workers of Troop No. 11 helped at theatres during vacation and made a splendid impression in their new uniforms.

Rummage Sale
A rummage sale will be held by Clinton Chapter No. 445, O. E. S., at 620 Broadway the week beginning April 27. Any member having articles to donate is asked to call Miss Elizabeth Schwank or Paul Jones and they will be collected.

What It Means
In wartime, when production of "consumer goods"—like food, clothing, hot water bottles and radios—is chopped off right and left, the gates are open for inflation. More people have more money to spend, but there are fewer things to spend it for. Frantically grabbing for the things that are left, buyers create a further shortage and drive the prices up.

Ideas on how to check inflation are flowing like water around Washington. In general they fall into four groups:

1. Proposals to put ceilings on all prices and service charges.
2. Proposals to put ceilings on wages, profits, rents, all kinds of income.

3. Proposals to increase taxes heavily.
4. Proposals for enforced savings, by requiring employers to hold out part of their employees' pay. Under most plans this money would be turned over to the government, either as an advance payment on taxes or as a loan.

The purpose of the last three, of course, would be simply to keep people from having too much money to spend.

Ceilings The Answer?
On the face of it, it would seem that clamping a ceiling on all prices (the law now lets officials set ceilings as they see fit) would end the whole trouble. But economists opposed to the universal price ceiling plan as a cure-all contend that this would happen:

Since more money is available, the value of money will go down. Merchants, compelled to take this depreciated currency, will seek to get rid of it and put it into goods that will make money even more plentiful in relation to goods, and all that damned up money will seek an outlet. Even in England, where taxes are much higher than here, bootlegging and "black markets" have sprung up.

It is agreed by these economists and by most members of Congress proposing anti-inflation measures that we must look at the other side of the coin as well—a means for controlling the supply of money.

Wage ceilings are a touchy political subject. In the price control act it was specifically stated that the law was not to affect wages, and it is not generally believed in Washington that any wage limits will be set up.

Instead, it seems more likely that heavier taxes or enforced savings will win out. There is talk of nearly doubling the Treasury Department's proposal for $7,600,000,000 in new taxes, although Chairman George of the Senate Finance Committee says he feels "the original treasury recommendations called for all the additional taxes the nation can stand without hampering war production."

You'll probably be hearing a great deal about compulsory savings. The demand for a payroll deduction plan is reported to be growing in administration circles. The voluntary defense stamp and bond plan can never cut to the point where it hurts—and any anti-inflation plan has to hurt to be any good.

Home Defense
Eleventh Ward
Thomas J. Murphy, zone warden for the Eleventh Ward is anxious to have all persons in the ward both men and women, who have taken the first aid course attend a meeting in the ward in order that first aid workers may be assigned to various posts. This list of first aid course men and women has not been available and it has been impossible thus far to assign first aid workers to designated posts. A meeting is planned in the near future when all first aid persons will be asked to assemble so that assignments may be given out. This meeting will be called for both men and women who have finished their course. The date and time will be announced shortly so that the Eleventh Ward set-up may be completed.

Registration
Registration days for the selective service enrollment of all men between the ages of 45 and 65 will be held today, Sunday and Monday. Hours of registration today and Sunday are from 10 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon. On Monday the hours will be from 9 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock in the evening.

Teachers' College News

Selective Admission Examinations for the State Teachers' College at New Paltz will be held this year Saturday, May 3, at 8:30 o'clock in the morning and continuing throughout the day. These examinations must be taken by all applicants for entrance to any state teachers' college which educates teachers for the elementary grades. They do not pertain, however, to Albany State Teachers' College which prepares high school teachers.

For the convenience of high school seniors living in the east part of the state, the examination will be held in the high schools at Kingston, Hudson, Liberty, Yonkers, Huntington, Patchogue and at the State College at New Paltz.

Examinations Are Selective
The selective admissions program makes a candidate's eligibility dependent upon graduation not later than June 1942 from an approved four year high school; a record of high school scholarship well above the passing grade; the earning of a commendable rank as a result of the admission tests, and making a favorable impression as the result of a series of personal interviews.

The rise of state normal schools to the rank of the colleges offers to the young people of the state an educational opportunity to secure the professional training necessary to become teachers, at a minimum cost. The State Teachers' Colleges offer a four-year course of study and grant a collegiate degree. Tuition is free and there are only moderate fees for student activities.

Other Activities Included
The major concern of the teachers' colleges is professional, however, they provide a pleasant variety of extracurricular activities in music, art, dramatics, journalism, athletics, clubs, societies, fraternities and a well organized program of social and cultural phases of college experience.

Young women and young men interested in learning more about the possibilities of the State Teachers' College should consult their local high school principals.

Table Tennis at School
Harry Cook, undefeated Canadian National Singles Table Tennis Champion and holder of the New York state and New Jersey table tennis titles, and Douglas Gartland, Southern States, Middle Atlantic States and Metropolitan title holder entertained with demonstrations of table tennis technique in the auditorium Tuesday morning.

The first event of two challenge matches in which Albeit Watkins opposed Mr. Gartland and Charles Behensky and Mr. Cook. Mr. Cook playing in a chair defeated Doherty Heory, he met Mr. Gartland in a seven point game in which anything went.

A serious exhibition game resulted in Gartland's winning over Cook by 21 to 16.

Tickets on Sale
Tickets for the grand opening of that cafe in the park, Cafe 44, will go on sale in the main hall, Monday, April 27.

The Cafe is opening under the leadership of the Sophomore Class and according to reports will be a success.

Frank Thomas and Sue Lawson, the head waiters, are in charge of serving the affair and are bringing their orders to a close. Leo Poulos and Mabel Bitcon are busy planning the decorations and they are planning on unusual bits to brighten the "hall."

Harrison Provides Music
Just as the "Club 21" and the Cafe Rouge have their bands provide music for their dancing patrons, so have the sophomores provided for tapping feet and musical ears. Ward Harrison, the famed band-leader, known not only to his fellow "Newburghites" but to many as having one of the best bands for many miles around will play 'til the tables are pulled in and the awnings rolled up closing the cafe 'til another night. Band leader Harrison is bringing Alice De Cesare with him to sing the parton's requests. Doris Pine and Bob Reissman are also going to bring some of the Sophomore talent to light during the evening.

Ellen Fithian was the Cafe's secretary and has sent out formal invitations to all faculty members and many of the class's friends. Violet Gregg cornered the Balfour salesman and ordered the birds. They are rectangular in shape and light green in color with a translucent cover.

Review Will Be Given
"The First Degree," an original review, will be presented by the Music Association in the auditorium at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday evening, May 5. Women's chorus, under the direction of Miss Marion H. Harding, is in charge of production.

The theme of the review, which involves over 100 students, musical and otherwise, is a gay, good natured lampooning of things done around New Paltz. It is the New Paltz version of the Gridiron Club's annual event.

Students Write Score
Elizabeth Bennett, Kenneth Eldridge, May Lynch and Mary Ryan wrote the libretto and Christian Holt and Jean Rogers composed some original music.

"First Degree" will include a performance in seven scenes. Seven students, Hazel Barger, Mathilda Euser, Peg Flannery, Shirley McWilliams, Margery Van Kleek and Betty Wright are in charge of scenes. The first of which will depict a visit by a New Paltz delegation to the Board of Regents in Albany. All other scenes will take place in or around New Paltz.

Mr. Snooper is Feature

Mr. Snooper, an unforgettable character, will be in most of the scenes. He has been sent from Albany to streamline the institution at New Paltz.

Scene III, entitled "Sociable Studies" will show a formal classroom modernized.

The fourth scene will depict a new and different library. Scene VI is called Graphology. Another scene will be a "take off" on the selection of Fraternity and Sorority members, and the seventh and final scene will concern graduation.

Dances to Be Shown
Certain dance scenes such as the conga, polka, and waltzes, and quips of all kinds are promised. Solos, duets, trios, quartets, and larger ensembles will also be featured.

According to all reports, "The First Degree" will definitely be something "new and different."

Response to Forum
Letters to our Forum Service show the enthusiastic response that it is meeting with in the field. Letters have come to the broadcast stations indicating that there are regular listeners to our programs. Mrs. Dunn, principal of Kingston High School, writes: "We had your forum today as per schedule and were very much pleased with your group of young people and the way they presented the subject of Health and Nutrition."

So far as assembly programs are concerned, that was a rather new idea to us and now that the ice has been broken, we should like to try some of this sort of thing in the future. Whenever you are undertaking anything similar to this nature, be sure to let us know and give us a chance to participate."

The next forum broadcast from WGNV, Newburgh, will be on April 26 at 2:30. The speakers are Peggy Block and Winand Redding.

On April 27 at 6:06 they will broadcast from Kingston, together with Robert Reissman.

"Parade of Nature"
Frank S. Gehr, photographing naturalist and lecturer, will present "A Parade of Nature" at the assembly of Tuesday, April 28.

Mr. Gehr has among his collection innumerable pictures of birds, animals, insects, frogs, toads, flowers and many oddities of nature trails. He has made a special study of the natural inhabitants of the country around his home, and lectures chiefly on the more familiar animals and plants. Fascinating stories about the explorations add life and interest to the films. Mr. Gehr is especially noted for his night photography which depicts nocturnal life on the move.

Spring Peeper Posing
The little spring peeper, whose call is known to all of us, poses for Frank Gehr's films and demonstrates how he sings his spring song. The wonderful story of the opossum, that has lived on our continent for so long, is a revelation to all. Flower mysteries that are almost unbelievable to us are shown on the screen. The first spring flower is a surprise to many watchers.

Mr. Gehr speaks of the uncanny intelligence of these creatures, and camera hunters gain inspiration from his lectures.

Barge Captain's Body Recovered Near Bronx Port

The body of Robert Engelbrecht of Otis avenue, town of Ulster, who was drowned Friday morning was recovered about 4 o'clock that afternoon. Engelbrecht, who had been employed as a barge captain for the Hutton Co., of this city for half a century, was drowned off his barge at the foot of Dock street, Westchester Square, the Bronx.

From what could be learned Captain Engelbrecht apparently fell from the barge a short time after he had arisen Friday morning. He was a widely known Hudson river man, and was one of the oldest barge captains in years of service, along the river.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Louise Lindhorst Engelbrecht, three daughters, Mrs. Oscar Snyder, Mrs. Harold Pratt and Mrs. Kenneth Pratt, all of Kingston, and two grandchildren.

Captain Engelbrecht was a member of the Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church of this city. The body was brought to Kingston by Jensen & Deegan, and funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Two Bicyclists in Collision With Automobiles in City

Two bicyclists, a boy and a girl, were involved in accidents with automobiles on Friday afternoon in Kingston. The boy reported he was unhurt, while the girl suffered a leg injury.

According to the reports made to the police department Arthur Hasbrouck of 205 West Chestnut street, driving out of East O'Reilly street into Broadway, halted his car and was waiting for the traffic light to change when the girl, Ruth Levy, 14, of 192 Albany avenue, rode her bicycle up Broadway and was turning into O'Reilly street when her bicycle struck the front bumper of the Hasbrouck car.

The girl and her bicycle were taken to her home in the truck of the Board of Education.

George Megley, 12, of 61 East Chester street, reported that while he was standing with his bicycle near the curb on East Chester street, near Broadway, that a trailer-truck driven by Charles Stale of Massena, and owned by the Walsh Trucking Company struck his bicycle, wrecking the rear wheel. The boy informed the police that he was not hurt.

The accident to the girl occurred at 4:05 o'clock and to the boy at 4:13 o'clock that afternoon.

Sugar Rationing Statement Made By Local Board

Tuesday and Wednesday of next week are the two days designated for the sugar registration of the trade groups.

This morning the Kingston Rationing Board issued the following statement covering the registration in the city:

The dates for the trade registration for sugar are on Tuesday and Wednesday, April 28 and 29. The term "trade" refers to retailers, wholesalers, institutions and industrial users, including food service establishments. All firms, hotels, boarding houses, restaurants, grocery stores, cafeterias, taverns and cafes where meals are served, confectionery establishments, etc., etc., shall register on the above-mentioned dates.

It is urged that the owner, manager, or some other designated person representing a retailer, wholesaler, institution, etc., apply at the high school for a registration blank prior to Tuesday, April 28.

It is feared that unless these blanks are made out before appearing at the high school for registration, too much time will be consumed in making out the application blank and forms during the actual hours of registration.

The hours set for the trade registration are as follows: Tuesday, April 28, 3 p. m. to 8 p. m.

Wednesday, April 29, 1 p. m. to 8 p. m.

The Kingston High School is designated as the place where all trade registration shall be made.

Likewise, Class 3-A or 3-B will not be given men whose dependents, such as working wives who had been providing their own support adequately, voluntarily quit working for the primary purpose of affording a basis for dependency deferment.

The order said if the allotment allowance benefits being considered by congress were low, all registrants now deferred because of dependency would not necessarily be reclassified. "Every consideration will be given to adequate support requirements," selective service officials said.
